About This Certified Course

A number of factors have combined in the EU member States of Ireland and the United Kingdom which will determine how employers will respond to workplace mental health. A framework agreement on work related stress was concluded by the EU in 2004 which applies to all 27 member states.

In Ireland two pieces of legislation the Health and Safety Act (SHWWA) 2005 and the Employment Equality Act (EEA) 1998-2015 sets out the obligations on employers to provide a duty of care and reasonable accommodation for employees with disabilities including mental health disorders.

Similar legislation in the United Kingdom includes the Health and Safety at Work Act 1974, under which employers are under a duty to manage the psychosocial risk in the workplace and a duty under the Equality Act 2010 to make reasonable adjustments for disabilities including mental health.

Certified Training Certificate of attendance presented by the EAP Institute will be sent by post. The full course notes and the PowerPoint will be sent by email.
